How can we help you save time and money?

Maggie's Story: Legal Defence

- Maggie is the owner of a commercial heating, ventilation and air conditioning repair company, with 15 employees spread across the city on various jobs.
- One day, Maggie was notified that she was being charged by the provincial workers occupational health and safety authority for failing to report an on-site injury to them.
- Maggie was shocked as she had no idea that any of her employees were hurt on the job until now.
- She immediately called the Legal Helpline for assistance and her case was passed on to the ARAG Claims Department.
- A lawyer was assigned to her and was able to negotiate a deal whereby three charges were dropped and only one charge was plead guilty to, which carried a small fine.
- Maggie was relieved her ARAG policy saved her company over $8,000 in legal fees.

Hassan's Story: Employment Disputes

- Hassan owns a restaurant. He recently had to let an employee go who had a history of poor work performance.
- The employee was terminated without cause and provided legally required severance.
- The now former employee sued Hassan for wrongful dismissal and filed a human rights complaint seeking $80,000 in damages, on the basis they were terminated due to their family status.
- Hassan was upset, and called the ARAG Legal Helpline for assistance. The Helpline Lawyer passed his case on to the ARAG Claims Department, and an employment lawyer was assigned to defend Hassan.
- The lawyer negotiated a settlement whereby the Human Rights action was dropped and a $16,000 settlement was paid versus the $80,000 originally sought by the former employee.
- Hassan's business also saved over $41,000 in legal fees.
